Weed District To Be Formed

MENLO PARK, June 30.—City Attorney James T. O'Keefe Jr. of Menlo Park was ordered by the city council last night to draft a resolution for the creation of a weed abatement district applying to all vacant lots within the municipal limits.

If the abatement district is formed, vacant lots will be posted and the owners required to eradicate weeds or the work will be undertaken by the city and the cost assessed against the property holders.

Easements were granted for the installation of the new water pipeline.

Permission was granted to the Menlo Park post of the American Legion to hold a fireworks display July 4.

A suggestion that a sign directing traffic to downtown Menlo Park be installed on Middlefield road was referred to Commissioner of Streets Irving Dunn.

Driver of Ambulance Takes Ride in One

Emulating the proverbial hike of a postman on his day off, Charles H. McTernan, 50, Mission Emergency Hospital ambulance driver in San Francisco, took a ride himself in an ambulance for emergency treatment in Redwood City after he apparently had fallen from his automobile, sheriff's officers reported.

Spending his vacation at his East Palo Alto home on Palo Verde avenue, McTernan went for a drive late Tuesday, and was later found by the side of Bay road lying near his car, according to Mrs. Marie Phillips of 1485 Oak Knoll drive, who made the report to the sheriff.

McTernan was taken to Community Hospital in San Mateo, after he had been brought into Dr. Harry Mason's office by Undersheriff Lawrence Nieri. He suffered severe lacerations and shock, the doctor said.

CLOSED SHOP FOR EDITORIAL WRITERS MEETS OPPOSITION Publishers Lay Groundwork for National Association of Newspapers

Having aided in accomplishing the two major objectives sought by the California Newspaper Publishers Association, its president, George Morell of Palo Alto, president also of Peninsula Newspapers Incorporated, owners of The Tribune, returned to his home by airplane Wednesday from Chicago.

At the session Tuesday, first of its kind to draw publishers from all parts of the United States together, action included:

1. Passage of a resolution declaring "unalterable opposition to the closed shop or any other form of closed shop for those who prepare and edit news and pictures for newspapers."

2. Formation of the framework for a national newspaper organization, as urged by Morell and the C.N.P.A.

The resolution pointed out that "no newspaper can command confidence in the fairness of its news presentation if it selects all its employees from only one political party, one religious denomination, or any one group devoted to a single cause," such as the guild might become.

IMPARTIALITY PERILED
The resolution further stated that the publishers "are unwilling to turn over the news columns to any group already committed as an organization on high controversial public questions," holding that such action would destroy impartial reporting, with consequent ultimate loss of freedom of the press.

The closed shop for other departments of newspapers was not opposed. The mechanical departments of nearly all newspapers, including The Tribune, have long operated on a closed shop basis.

The national newspaper organization, to be known as The Newspaper Committee, will be made up of James G. Stahlman, president of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, chairman; L. B. Palmer, secretary, and 10 regional vice chairmen, including Morell for California. The committee will, for the first time in history, provide an all-inclusive organization of American newspapers of all sizes. The A.N.P.A. has been composed mainly of larger papers.

Text of the resolution follows: "The newspaper editors and publishers from all sections of the United States, individually and through their cooperative associations listed below, are gathered here to take action upon the American Newspaper Guild's recent declaration for the closed shop in editorial and news departments. We recognize the fact that when a problem of major importance to the public is presented to us, the public is entitled to a statement.

"This meeting is by no means one of opposition to collective bargaining, better hours, pay or working conditions for newspaper men and women.

"We are here to discuss the closed shop as a matter of journalistic and public principle, not as an economic issue.

"Established for the benefit of all the people are four fundamental rights in the Constitution: Freedom of religion—freedom of speech—freedom of the press and freedom of assembly. Experience has proved and even now is demonstrating in Russia, Italy and Germany, that the interference with one of these fundamental rights means the curtailment of the others—the collapse of liberty itself.

FREEDOM OF PRESS
"Freedom of the press is not an exemption accorded by the Constitution for the benefit of publishers; it is but one of these four guarantees. It is a publisher's responsibility. It is citizen's right—one which entitles him to an accurate statement of what is taking place in order that he may have the facts wherewith to judge matters of public policy and take whatever action may be necessary to protect himself and that which he holds dear.

"There has never been a time in our history when uncolored presentation of news was as vitally important as today. The extension of the great press associations serving news to newspapers of varying social, economic, political and religious beliefs has emphasized this development of impartial news treatment. Thousands of men and women are devoting their lives to the gathering and presentation of the news without bias.

"Only upon such a foundation of factual reporting can sound public opinion and wise public policies be based.

VITAL SERVICE

"This vital service of the press to the public can be performed properly only when those who are responsible for the publication are free to choose the persons whom they deem best qualified to report and edit the news. This responsibility cannot be discharged if some outside authority, behind their control, determines whom they shall or shall not employ. That is precisely what the American Newspaper Guild seeks by its demand. And that demand is the more serious because the guild is now committed to a number of definite political objectives.

"The recent American Newspaper Guild convention in St. Louis by resolution took positions on such debatable subjects as the war in Spain, the court bill, the support of a particular political party. In the same convention the guild as a partisan in the tremendous public dispute now involving the entire labor movement in this country.

"Following the expression on the public policies enumerated, the guild laid down mandatory rules calling for a closed or guild shop. The closed shop is present in mechanical departments of many newspapers absent in some. We unite now, however, in unswerving objection to the closed shop for news and editorial department workers—not because we regard it as a labor issue involving questions of wages, hours, and working conditions, but because we are unwilling to turn over the news columns to any group already committed as an organization on highly controversial public questions.

"We make no charge that bias is found per se in the work of a guild member. To do so would imply bias per se in a nonguild worker. Neither is true. Bias arises, however, among any group. No newspaper can command confidence in the fairness of its news presentation if it selects all its employees from only one political party, one religious devotion to a single cause.

"We do not deny that causes require champions, and that progress springs from the genius of advocates. Equally important to society, however, are those who report the controversial scene. It is the newspaper man's job to do that, not as a partisan but as an objective observer.

SIGN STATEMENT

"Therefore, be it resolved, that as editors and publishers here assembled from all parts of the United States, we declare our unalterable opposition to the closed guild shop or any other form of closed shop for those who prepare and edit news and pictures for newspapers, and we hereby express our determination not to enter into any agreement upon such basis.

Cellophane Replaces Membrane on Brain

MONTREAL, Que., July 1 (UP)—Somewhere in Quebec province today a farmer went about his business with a portion of his brain wrapped in cellophane. The farmer, whose name was withheld by officials of St. Luke's Hospital, recently underwent a brain operation after being kicked in the head by a horse. The blow had broken the membrane surrounding the brain.

Many Prepare For Three-Day Holiday Ahead FOURTH OF JULY VACATION OFFERS SCENIC TRIPS OF WORLD-WIDE DIVERSITY

Another three-day holiday lies just ahead.

Because the glorious Fourth falls on Sunday this year, Monday has been declared a legal holiday. And because many thousands will also take Saturday off, vast caravans of motorists will answer the call of the open road during the third, fourth and fifth of July.

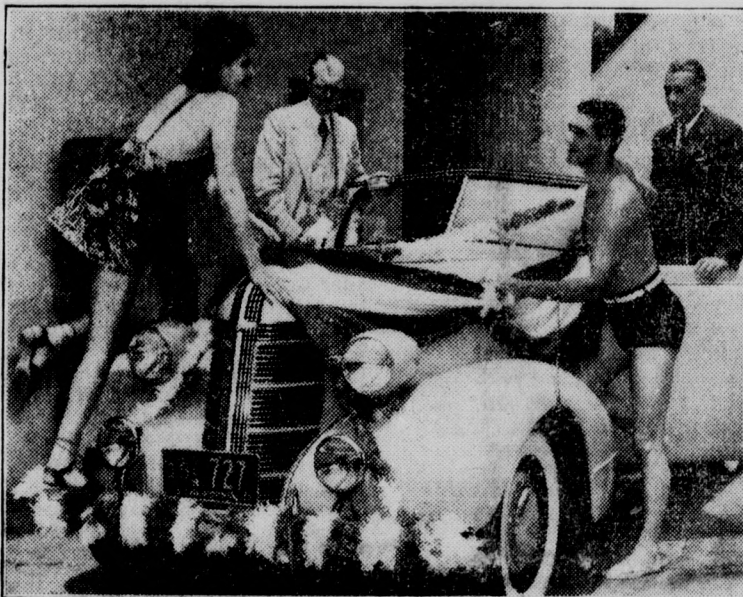

"Step in your car and see the world in three days," says A. J. Donnelly, the Northern California manager of General Petroleum Corporation, marketers of Mobilgas and Mobiloil.

"We say 'See The World,' because in our Pacific region one may feast his eyes on scenery that literally duplicates almost all famous areas of the globe.

"A push of the starter button transforms the family car into a magical flying carpet which transports us, easily within three days, to duplicates of the jagged Alps of Switzerland; broad reaches of the Mississippi; exotic inland seas of Japan; skiing and tobogganing areas of Germany;

Off for a tour in a patriotically bedecked Pontiac, lovely Rita Hayworth and Charles Quigley, currently featured together in the Columbia production "Flamingo Skates," are reminded of the three-day holiday by sign posted in Mobilgas stations, which is pointed out to them by Lloyd Bayly, sales promotion and advertising manager of General Petroleum.

Showers Easy To Install In All Homes Now

Modern shower equipment, like almost everything else, has gone both "streamline" and scientific in design, but more pleasing, perhaps, to the home owner is the fact that it is now possible to attach a shower to almost any conceivable type of tub or install one in any sort of compartment or room layout, according to H. H. Simmons, advertising manager of Crane Co.

No longer is it necessary to stop bathroom traffic and tear out plaster and wall or devise new piping. The newer shower fixtures, called addenda showers to match their attributes, convert bare tubs of almost any type into delightful shower compartments, require no wall or piping alteration and are not expensive.

One kind, chromium plated and designed to fit any built-in tub, requires only a change of spout and the insertion of two screws, and can be attached by a master plumber in a few seconds. Most of these attachable showers are also equipped with the Refreshor type heads which are scientifically designed to give a more spirited shower and save water, yet not clog or need cleaning.

Fireworks Permit Revocation Asked

Grand Jury Chairman Patrick Rorke announced today that he plans to demand of the Bayshore City Council that the community revoke licenses granted to vendors of fireworks, selling their wares in the northern city in violation of an ordinance in effect in the Bayshore City fire district and the rest of the county.

Rorke, after consulting with Fire Warden Bert Werder, who had asked a special session of the grand jury to take action against the northern community, also suggested the possibility that if the city refused to revoke the permits, deputy sheriffs might be stationed near the booths to confiscate all fireworks sold.

Hetch Hetchy Pipeline Work Begins at Once

Better Water Supply
Due for Atherton,
Menlo Park

Construction plans for a $67,000 pipeline and water treatment plant development to distribute Hetch Hetchy water through the California Water Service Company's Menlo Park and Atherton mains were announced Wednesday.

The work of connecting the proposed 36-inch Palo Alto-Redwood City Hetch Hetchy main to the old Bear Gulch reservoir on the heights overlooking Atherton will begin immediately.

Plans for the Palo Alto main were advanced a notch when the San Francisco municipal water department obtained easements yesterday over public streets from the cities of Atherton and Menlo Park.

ROUTE TOLED
Sketches indicate the Palo Alto main will extend along the western side of the Southern Pacific right-of-way, through Lloyd Park subdivision to the railroad depot in Atherton and along Station lane and Fair Oaks avenue to the Atherton city limits.

In exchange for the right-of-way granted over its land, the Lloyd Park realty firm obtained a valuable easement for a sewer connection via Loyola avenue to the North Fair Oaks system.

Through Menlo Park the main will cross Encinal, Glenwood, Oak Grove and Ravenswood avenues, proceeding along Ravenswood to cross over El Camino Real to the west side and extending on to California avenue.

MIXTURE AVAILABLE

The California Water Service proposes to connect with the Palo Alto main near the Atherton depot. Seventeen thousand feet of 16-inch spiral welded steel pipe, concrete lined, will be installed along Atherton avenue, the Alameda de las Pulgas, and Walsh road, paralleling the present 20-inch main on Atherton avenue, and ending near the reservoir. Five new fire hydrants will be installed by the company on Atherton avenue.

Hetch Hetchy and water from the present California company will be mixed at a treatment house near the reservoir to produce a soft water to be supplied through the Menlo Park-Atherton pipes. The product will be treated by aeration, chlorination, and ammoniation and will flow from storage tanks by gravity to the lower sections of the California Water Service Company's pipes and will be pumped to the higher zones.

NO RATE INCREASE

Permission to install the line was obtained from the Atherton City Council yesterday by the utility company. Until it is built, a supply of Hetch Hetchy water may be obtained from a present stand-by connection between the San Francisco and the company's lines on Bay road.

Manager H. E. Poultier of the Menlo Park branch of the water company said today that there would be no increase in rates to consumers, although the Hetch Hetchy water will be more expensive to the firm than that obtained from wells and watersheds.

Dismissal Won By Cleve Hower On Death Charge

Negligent homicide charges against Cleve Hower, 46, of Burlingame, state board of equalization auditor, were dismissed here Wednesday by Superior Judge A.R. Cotton upon motion of Dep. Dist. Atty. Louis B. Dematteis.

In asking for the dismissal, Dematteis pointed out that another trial would entail additional expense, and that it was quite probable that a second jury would also disagree upon the homicide counts.

It took a jury five hours on June 21 to determine that Hower was not guilty of manslaughter. They disagreed, however, on the less serious negligent homicide charge.

Hower, overjoyed at the successful end of his long legal fight against accusations which had their origin last Christmas Eve in a Burlingame smashup, was congratulated by his attorney, Francis Murphy, and by his family, members of which have been faithful auditors of the proceedings.

Tragic origin of the case was the Howard avenue and Bayshore highway intersection crash between Hower's car and that of Harold Crotty, San Jose glass company manager. Crotty was fatally injured, and his wife and son both were hurt.

Southern County Sewers Branded Health Menace

County Engineer U. S. Marshall Wed. branded the sanitary system in the southern end of San Mateo county as "insanitary" and more formidable job to clean up than were the Aegean stables of mythological note.

His announcement followed a study of the prospect of formation of a southern county sanitary district, laid out with the Veterans Administration Facility in East Palo Alto as a nucleus. Marshall suggested that it might be possible to use a contribution from the facility as the sponsor's share for a PWA project that would put the southern county sanitation on a sanitary basis.

The engineer said that the 24-inch pipes now serving the facility are 20 years old and "in bad shape."

Pipes in the area are so crammed with matter that the sewers are nearly over-flowing, creating a health menace, Marshall declared. He said no efforts are being made to pump out the pipes.

"When the pipes are finally full, it is going to be a harder job to clean them out than were the Aegean stables 'that once balked the prowess of heroes of mythology,' Marshall declared.

STARS' CAREERS ARE NIPPED IN BUD
Officer Tells Girls Hollywood Long Walk
SO WOULD-BE ACTRESSES SENT HOME

Two little Oakland girls, budding "movie stars," had Hollywood careers nipped in the bud Wednesday by Highway Patrolman Frank Chevalier.
He found the little girls, Martina Lofgren, 13, and Sara Markowitz, 11, trudging along the Bayshore highway near Baden.
He asked them the patrol equivalent of "Where are you bound my pretty maiden?"
The answer he received was that the tots were on their way to the southern film center.
The girls, heavily rouged and lip-sticked, wore brand new dresses, charged to their mothers and fathers, as it later developed, but nevertheless aimed at pleasing a director's eye.
Turned over to their parents, the girls agreed that perhaps Hollywood was a long way to walk. Besides they had seen one "star," anyhow. It gleamed on Chevalier's chest.

TRAFFIC SCHOOL PROPOSAL WINS
FAVOR OF PROBATION OFFICER

Juvenile Probation Officer Francis Robinson has joined those persons seeking establishment of a traffic violator school here as a means of reducing the accident fatality toll.
Establishment of such a school has already been suggested to the county traffic safety commission. Although the commissioners have not made any decision to make such a school one of their chief objectives, they are studying the proposal and their chairman, Dr. Arthur A. Nobbs, is planning to inspect a violators' school tomorrow night in San Jose.
Robinson said he believed that such a school would aid greatly in reducing the number of accidents in which juveniles participate.
As another suggestion he declared that he believed the age of persons coming under jurisdiction of the juvenile traffic court should be raised from 18 to 21.
He said that the juvenile court, through centralization of traffic records and severe enforcement, has reduced the number of juvenile traffic offenses approximately one-third, from 12 a month to 8 a month on the average, in San Mateo county.
Punishment found most effective for juveniles, according to Robinson, is inconvenience—having to report at certain times when the youngsters would otherwise be playing.
For this reason, Robinson said, the traffic violator school would be particularly effective since besides the good it would do in teaching drivers correct driving habits, the school would also serve as an inconvenience to those adults and juveniles who were ordered to attend it.
Robinson's suggestions will be laid before the traffic safety mass meeting here July 12, it is anticipated. Judges, justices of the peace, police chiefs and officers and highway patrolmen, as well as others interested in traffic problems, have been invited to the meeting by the safety commission.

PLASTERER, WOULD-BE SUICIDE,
ORDERED TO SUPPORT CHILDREN

Edmund E. Brennan, 52, Burlingame plasterer who on May 15 futilely sought solace from his troubles in death, today was under orders of Superior Judge Cotton to pay $50 per month for support of his three children, who live with their mother at 1020 Capuchino avenue, Burlingame.
The money is to be paid in $12.50 weekly installments to Probation Officer Francis Robinson, who recommended to Judge Cotton that Brennan be admitted to probation. Robinson will transmit the money to Mrs. Caroline Brennan for support of Agnes Brennan, 17; James, 14, and Mary, 10.
Brennan, estranged from his wife, was rescued from suicide by deputy sheriffs who waded more than 100 feet through rising waters on the Kings river slough near Hanford. Motorists called officers when they saw Brennan drive his car into the slough and attach a hose to his exhaust pipe. He was unconscious when officers broke into the car. He blamed family troubles at the time.

Woodside Girls
Hurt as Machine
Runs Into Tree

Two Woodside young women were painfully injured Tues. evening when one of them apparently fainted and the car she was driving hurtled into a tree on the Mountain Home road a mile south of Woodside.

The injured, Katherine Marie Plestina, 19, the driver, and Ann Plestina, 24, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John Plestina, Portola road, were taken to Mills Memorial Hospital.

The younger girl had eight front teeth knocked out when her mouth struck the steering wheel. She was also badly cut about the face. She may be scared by her injuries.

The elder girl was being x-rayed today for possible internal injuries. She escaped without serious cuts.

The driver told Highway Patrolman Walter Sequira and James Wallace that she had no recollection how the crash happened but believed she must have fainted.

The young women were given emergency treatment by Dr. Robert Monteith before being taken to the hospital. Both of them are saleswomen, the younger in a San Francisco store, and the other at a store in Woodside.

ON THE BIRTH of a NATION

July 4th marks the 161st anniversary of the birth of these United States. Peninsula Stores will be closed all day MONDAY, July 5, in order that our employees may join their fellow Americans to fittingly celebrate this glorious occasion, for we hold these facts to be self evident... that all men are endowed with certain inalienable rights... among them being Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness.

"Breathes there a man with soul so dead, who never unto himself hath said, 'This is my own, my native land'."

Colma, Menlo Park Elections Ordered

Scheduling two elections and canvassing the results of the June 22 charter amendment vote, the board of supervisors conducted a routine session Wednesday, with nothing of crucial importance being taken up because of the absence of Supervisors Fred E. Beer and John W. Poole.

The charter amendment official tally as approved by the supervisors gave 6822 votes for proposition No. 1, making the appointive offices of county executive, treasurer, engineer, coroner, recorder and treasurer elective, as against 5326 negative votes.

Proposition No. 2 won 5385 favorable votes and 6385 negative ones in the official tally. This measure sought to retain the executive appointive.

Officially set were the previously announced August 3 election on the proposed dissolution of the Colma fire district, and the August 17 vote on the proposal for formation of a Menlo Park County Water District.

The Swannanoa tunnel under the crest of the Blue Ridge at Ridgecrest, N. C., is 1,910 feet long.

Mexican street vendors chant their wares in complicated songs, some solo but often in duets.

Supplementary Grant for Port Sought of PWA

The long-discussed "supplementary" application to the Federal Public Works Administration for funds to enlarge the facilities now being built at Redwood City harbor was being prepared today for submission to proper authorities following decision of the city council Monday at their meeting here to seek an additional grant for port work.

The amount to be sought from the government is $32,604-45 per cent of the estimated $72,454 cost of the additional equipment. The other $39,850 would be taken from the $66,000 in harbor bonds voted and never issued—providing authority of the citizens of Redwood City could be obtained through a poll.

The submission of an application for the funds does not bind the city to accept the grant if offered, it was explained. However, if it is learned that the money can be secured, it can then be determined if the amount is wanted.

The funds would be used to enlarge the warehouse now under construction and for additions to the wharf.

Anticipated business which has come in sight since start of harbor construction work has convinced city councilmen and port commissioners that the additional facilities will be highly desirable shortly after opening of the harbor in September.

It was at first believed the larger facilities would not be needed for several years.

Missing Caretaker Telephones Wife

Fears for the safety of Lou Ryan, 54, caretaker at the Belle Haven tract south of Redwood City, who has been missing since June 19, were dispelled Monday as Mrs. Margaret Ryan, his wife, received a telephone message from him in Watsonville, she reported to the sheriff's office.

Ryan left for an American Legion meeting, never arrived there, and had not been heard from until this message. A state-wide search for the missing man was underway.

Reason for Ryan's being in Watsonville was not known.

Convicted S. M. Men Requesting Paroles

SAN MATEO, June 30.—Two men convicted of crimes in San Mateo and sent to the state prison have applied for parole and will be heard on their pleas in August, Chief of Police Thomas Burke of San Mateo was notified today.

Burke said he would make an effort to attend the hearing on the parole.

The two are Martin V. Uica, arrested March 6, 1933, on a charge of murdering his wife, and given seven years when convicted of manslaughter, and Edward E. Hollingshead, notorious "party bandit," who was apprehended in San Mateo June 7, 1934 and sentenced to five years.

Labor Strife Hits Building Totals

June may be a fine month for love and romance, but it's not so good for building.

Thus decided County Building Inspector William Watson today as he closed his books for this month and found a total of only $194,400, making the month one of two this year which failed to surpass the $200,000 mark.

Labor troubles, high prices and seasonal drop were the reasons given by Watson for the falling off in construction.

The total, including 45 new residences, 11 non-residential structures, 17 additions and alterations and eight cabins, was far short of May's total of $228,750. February was the low mark of the year with only $128,150.

DISPUTE OVER CHILD'S PARENTAGE PROVES OF NO COURT CONSEQUENCE

Diplomatic usage of the word "children" averted a superior court dispute here Monday over the parentage of a blonde and pretty 3-year-old Burlingame child, and assured her and her brother and sister $50 a month support from Horace Burnham of Los Angeles, glass company employee.

Yesterday Burnham pleaded guilty before Superior Judge Maxwell McNutt to separate charges of non-support of George, 17, and Edith Burnham, 9, but lodged a not guilty plea to a third count of non-support of Lenetta, the little tot who innocently played with a toy rabbit while the legal proceedings went on.

Lenetta is not his child, Burnham declared.

Today Burnham appeared before Superior Judge A. R. Cotton for sentence on the first two counts and trial on the third. The case was transferred because of a jury trial going on before Judge McNutt.

NEWEST Thrilling ADVENTURES of the MOUNTIES

MAN

Had it not been for a complaint about a stolen shirt, authorities would still be looking for a murderer who hid his victim in a trunk—and this is just one highlight from the latest annual report of Canada's celebrated police

By James Montagnes

MATTHIAS SCHMIDT was found dead in a trunk in his bedroom.

His neighbors had missed him for some days. They became anxious and notified the Peace River detachment of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

To the police the neighbors related that Schmidt had but recently come to the Peace River district to farm. He had heard of the prize-winning wheat crops which were grown in this section of northern Alberta, of how some of the farmers had been crowned Wheat King at Chicago year after year. He had some money, he would try growing this prize-winning wheat also.

The police investigated. First they went to Schmidt's homestead, some miles from his nearest neighbor. They looked about. All was as it should be, farm implements in place after the day's work, dishes cleared after a meal, and not a sign of disturbance. No trace of the missing man's whereabouts. His hat and coat were on a hook.

Cupboards, boxes and the storehouse were explored. At last, in a trunk which stood in the bedroom, the police found their man, shot with a .22 caliber rifle.

A check-up on the neighbors who had rifles. One man was found to own a .22 rifle. He had been an intimate friend of Schmidt. The rifle bullet when located checked with those used in the neighbor's gun.

But the neighbor, so good a friend of Schmidt, could not have committed the murder. He called the attention of the police to a young man, a stranger in the district, whom he had met at Schmidt's house. Because Schmidt had no extra bed, the stranger had come home with him to sleep, and had left the next morning. The police were puzzled.

FOUR hundred miles away in an Edmonton hotel a young man, James Whannell, claimed some money and a shirt had been stolen from his room. That was the day before Schmidt's disappearance was reported to the police.

The hotel manager called in the police, who questioned the young chap on his loss. Whannell described the shirt which had been stolen. The Mountie detectives became suspicious. For Whannell described the shirt he was wearing.

More questions followed. Where did Whannell get the money which he claimed was stolen? Did he have any more money? How was it that he had $30 in silver in his pockets? Where did he get it?

The questions were too much for Whannell. He confessed that no money or shirt had been stolen. He wanted a job in the hotel. He expected his story to win the sympathy of the hotel manager and so obtain a job. The silver money—he had held up a cafe in the Peace River district.

Reports came into divisional Mountie headquarters from the two posts. A man was murdered in the Peace River district. A cafe had been held up in that region by a young man 400 miles distant. The Mounties acted on a hunch.

Whannell's photo was sent to Peace River. There the neighbor who had given the stranger a bed for the night identified Whannell as his guest.

Not satisfied with this, the police took some of Whannell's clothing and jewelry to a woman in Edmonton who had known Schmidt. She identified shirts and a watch as having belonged to Schmidt.

Whannell had an alibi. Yes, he had visited Schmidt, and out of former friendship the older man had given Whannell some shirts and a watch in lieu of money to tide him over till he had a job. A plausible explanation. Whannell would only be tried on the cafe holdup.

THERE was still the point about the rifle which had killed Schmidt. The neighbor denied using it to murder his friend. But he had identified Whannell. Nevertheless Whannell could have taken the rifle for the neighbor had not missed it from his home, and it was still there when Whannell left.

Fingerprints were out of the question. The neighbor had used the gun between Whannell's visit and the finding of Schmidt's body. The Mounties were not satisfied. Someone had used the gun. Again they questioned Whannell, still in jail. Yes, he had gone from the neighbor's to Schmidt's several times during his visit to the Peace River district. He broke down.

"I killed Schmidt," he cried.

And his story was that he had committed the crime in self-defense. He had gone to the neighbor's house, taken the gun, shot Schmidt, hidden his body in the trunk, taken the rifle back and left the next morning. Had he not faked that complaint about a stolen shirt the police would probably never have caught him, and the neighbor might have been tried for the murder. Whannell was hanged early this year.

From the latest annual report of the famous Mounties, comes another case of murder, this time far north of the Arctic Circle. Up around Queen Maud Gulf is the police post of Cambridge Bay, one of the most isolated posts of all. A constable from this post on summer patrol in 1932 heard about a murder. One Eskimo had killed another. Not till the following March was he able to go on the trail, for the Eskimos involved lived somewhere on Adelaide Peninsula, and freeze-up had started.

Ahigiak was married. Anaruk was not. And Ahigiak's wife liked Anaruk. Ahigiak killed Anaruk. So Constable A. S. Wilson of the Cambridge Bay detachment learned when he caught up with Ahigiak the following spring.

Out across the frozen gulf the Mountie had started with his team and a native guide. Islands in the gulf were but white mounds. The Eskimos were out on the ice for their winter's sealing. From camp to camp Wilson traveled, always on the sea ice.

The going was good, and each camp brought him a little closer to where Ahigiak should be, according to information he picked up at the camps. Finally on the Etah Islands close to Finally on the Etah Islands close to Adelaide Peninsula the Mountie found his man, after nearly a month of traveling.

Adelaide Peninsula the Mountie found his man, after nearly a month of traveling.

Ahigiak and family joined Constable Wilson, and all went back to Cambridge Bay, where the native was committed for trial. But all the witnesses were not on hand. Anaruk's body had not been found. Ahigiak was given a year's freedom. The Mounties started rounding up witnesses.

NEXT winter Constable L. W. L. White and party started out to find Anaruk's body. Difficult, in a land of rock, snow, ice and water.

Bad weather started things off. No landmarks could be seen as they headed for King William Island, to work south from there to locate the body. Heavy winds swept biting snow into the caravan. The dogs had difficulty making way over the glaring windswept ice, their paws sticking to the glassy surface, tearing off

(Copyright, 1935, by EveryWeek Magazine)

One Mountie, flashing his light, caught sight of the three men pushing through the underbrush. Keeping his flashlight trained on them, he shot rapidly at one of them.

THE Mounties seldom draw their guns.

Their instructions are to use a revolver only after everything else has failed. Gun battles are not prominent in the annals of the force. But early in October was staged the biggest gun battle in the recent history of the Mounties. Four policemen and three holdup men were killed.

Three young men in Benito, Manitoba, borrowed a car to try it out before buying. They went to a dance that night in their car, and being strangers in the small town, were asked for their driving license. They were to report next morning, Saturday. They failed to show up.

A Mountie and municipal policeman patrolling the roads stopped the three men as they came along in their car. Transferring the three to the police car, the police started for the nearest police post in Saskatchewan. They never arrived.

On Monday a farmer's horses refused to pass a wooded piece of road. The farmer investigated, found the battered bodies of the two policemen in the bush. Raising an alarm, posses started out to look for the police car. A farmer reported to have seen three men righting a blood-spattered car, and driving away in it.

THE trail led to Banff National Park, where the search was pushed by Mounties and the police of three provinces.

Two Mounties pulling up to a car containing three men, to question them about the robbery of the motorist, were met with a shower of bullets. Both Mounties were wounded, the car sped on. The two Mounties died in a hospital. Score—4 police, 0 bandits.

The three men were somewhere in the neighborhood of the park. All night the hunt continued. One Mountie flashing his light caught sight of the three men pushing through the underbrush. Keeping the flashlight trained on them, he shot rapidly at one of them. The man fell.

Next morning citizens near Banff saw the outline of two men high up on a ridge. Police and game wardens climbed. A game warden shot bandit number two as he hid behind a huge log. Another shot wounded number three. The men died in hospital. Score—4 police, 3 bandits—the greatest killing in recent Mountie history.

Northward the party went, till it came to an Eskimo sealing camp, where a native was located who thought he knew the burial place of Anaruk. Onward the party went, now turned south to Adelaide Peninsula. They hit land, kept going.

The trip had taken longer than expected. Their coal oil supply for cooking was low. Rations were also getting down, for no game had been seen, and the dogs were growing troublesome for lack of enough food.

But on the policeman pushed, and in a small depression on practically flat Adelaide Peninsula, the natives agreed that Anaruk was buried. Their sense of direction was excellent. Digging through the ice, the policeman found a body. The natives identified it.

Back to Cambridge Bay, taking the natives with him as witnesses. Short rations, short kerosene, short dog food. Gathering witnesses on the way, over rough sea ice, with break-up threatening, the patrol pushed westward. Thirty-six days after leaving, Constable White brought his party back to Cambridge Bay, having traveled 900 miles.

With all the witnesses present, with Ahigiak back from his winter's sealing, the trial was held. Ahigiak admitted the killing. He was sentenced to five years' hard work at the police post at Aklavik.

More than 300 persons attended the annual picnic held Sunday at Memorial Park by the local Veterans of Foreign Wars post. Feature of the day's program of entertainment was a tug-of-war, won by army veterans pulling against their navy comrades.

Traffic 'Sins' Cost Money

Seven drivers were caught disregarding arterial stop signs; seven were cited for speeding; three for driving with overcrowded front seats; and two for parking.

And the bill for these traffic sins, paid in the end-of-the-week traffic courts of Judge Edward I. McLaughlin, was $52.50.

Speeders and their fines were: Charles S. Richman, San Francisco, $10; Ernest McManamy, Pacific Grove, and Harold O'Berz, San Jose, both $5; and Monroe Pinckard, Menlo Park, Mrs. Dorothy Moore, San Luis Obispo, Harry Hendra, San Jose, and Claire Dougherty, San Mateo, all assessed $2.50 apiece. There were all highway patrol arrests.

Fined $2.50 for the arterial offense were: J. A. Rogerson, Palo Alto, Gus Harms, San Francisco, C. E. Wight, Sky L'Ona, Thomas D. Church, San Francisco, and Frederick E. Harmon Jr., Palo Alto. Added to these highway patrol arrests, and with similar fines, were the cases of Joseph Matje

Fleming to Manage Annual Horse Show

ATHERTON, June 28—A. P. Fleming, veteran horse show manager, who for many years has directed the activities of half a dozen or more of the Pacific coast's greatest tanbark events, has been chosen as manager of the forthcoming 11th annual San Mateo County National Horse Show, it was announced today.

By letter, telegram and telephone and by personal airplane journeys, Fleming is now communicating with horse show owners to secure their entries.

Before the entry closing date on July 17, all the stables heretofore represented at the San Mateo National as well as countless others will have been listed in the manager's files as contenders for trophies and ribbons, according to Mrs. W. P. Roth, show president.
